Court

The trial of Arthur Barber and Pearl Dupler occupied the court since last Thursday, the trial closing on Monday night with a verdict of guilty with shooting with intent to kill. Dupler was on trial also for aiding and abetting, was acquitted. Nearly 100 witnesses were summoned on both sides, and great interest has been manifested.
The case grew out of the shooting at Longstreth, on the 10th of May last, at a church festival, when Duncan Christian was killed, and his father badly wounded by Barber. Barber admitted the shooting but claimed it was done in self-defense. Dupler had been held as an accessory.
The second degree murder indictment against Barber and Dupler was nolleed, and Barber sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary. Dupler was discharged.
The court adjourned on Tuesday, until next Monday, to give place to the Circuit Court, which opened session yesterday morning.

A drowning man would have little use for a method of rescue which would require days. A dyspeptic doesn't want to bother with a remedy that is going to take weeks to show its beneficial effects.
The Mount Lebanon Shakers are offering a product under the name of Shakers Digestive Cordial which yields immediate relief. The very first dose proves beneficial in most cases; and it is owing to their unbounded confidence in it, that they have put 10 cent sample bottles on the market. These can be had through any druggist; and it will repay the afflicted to invest the trifling sum necessary to make a trial.
The Shaker Digestive Cordial relieves by resting the stomach and aiding the digestion of food.

OBITUARY.

Alfred Cushing James was born on April 23, 1854 and died Sept. 27, 1897 in the 44th year of his age. He was married to Miss Emma E. Shauver, September 10th, 1874, who died August 31st, 1879 preceding him to the better land over 18 years ago. She was an amiable, beautiful christian girl, and their marriage was one of love and most happy. Her husband never recovered from the shock, mourning in single life her early departure to the last.

Who shall say that her happy spirit was not his ministering angel, all the years of his remaining life, and the first to meet and greet him on the other shore.

Are they not all ministering spirits sent forth to minister to those who shall be heir to salvation.

Mr. James made no formal profession of faith by uniting with the church but being born into the kingdom of God, dedicated to him in infancy, and reared in a christian home and the subject of many prayers and tears, of the saintliest of christian mothers, he could not but be favorably impressed toward the christian life, and in his better moments in the stillness of the night his heart would be lifted up in prayer to his Mother's God.

He inherited many of the excellent traits of his noble christian mother, kind, generous affectionate and true. Of him, his mother-in-law, with whom he made his home and who so tenderly cared for him in afflictions could say the 18 years he was most of the time with her, he had never given her a cross word.

It has been my privilege to enjoy his confidence and friendship from his boy-hood, he was ever pleasant cheerful and hopeful. I visited him in his illness, always found him bearing his severe sufferings with courage and fortitude.

I prayed with him and conversed with him as to his spiritual state.

He spoke freely and frankly, I asked if he was trusting in Jesus and he said yes.

If he took him as his personal Savior he answered yes. If he was praying to him during his sickness, he said yes.

In my last visit to him Saturday morning I told him I was going to preach on the Sabbath and he smilingly said he would like to go along and preach too.

My last words with him were "Are you trusting Jesus, he replied "I was not but I would not be here."

On Monday morning, when I returned home I learned that about 9 o'clock his spirit had taken its departure to God who gave it.

Jesus said "He that cometh to me I will in no way cast out" and to Martha he said "I am the resurrection and the life, he that believeth in me, though he be dead, yet shall he live, and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die." J. F. W.

A BAD RECORD

Has McKinley Made In Congressional Appointments.

MR. CULLOM IS DISGUSTED.

The Illinois Statesman Unbecomingly Himself To a Prominent Citizen—Chicago Appointments Promised Before Election.

The Chicago Journal published the following extract from a letter written by Senator Cullom to a prominent Illinoisman:

"I have not been able to get the president, in a single instance, in the selection of consuls to listen to what I had to say, and carry out my wishes. I am utterly disgusted at the way things have been going here in the way of consulships. I have never known anything like it."

"I believe the appointments that have been made for Chicago were all promised by Hanna and McKinley before the election, probably before the convention."

"I have labored with the president, talked with him and told him the gang he was appointing was not worth a snap, either for politics or anything else."

"He has never allowed the state department to settle a single consulship. He gives his orders to the department for the selection of his men and they carry out his program."

A letter written by a prominent resident of Washington to the same Illinoisan credits Cullom with saying: "McKinley seems to like to appoint scalawags to office from Illinois. The reason your friend has not been appointed is probably because he is a gentleman."

PROSPERITY FOR TRUSTS.

What Hannaism Has Done For The Protected Monopolists.

No more interesting, illuminating and suggestive commentary upon current commercial conditions is printed anywhere than that which an eminent journalist, writing over the pseudonym of "Matthew Marshall," contributes to the Sun. It is true that the writer's attitude is that of an extreme conservative, a defender of vested interests against all assaults. When this fact is kept in mind, regular perusal of his articles is sure to entertain and perhaps to instruct the reader.

Last Monday Marshall discussed the position of the so-called industrial trusts in the market. With commendable frankness he chronicled the fact that the stocks of such monopolistic corporations as the Standard Oil trust, the American Sugar Refining company and the Consolidated Gas company have shown the most rapid advances and hold the strongest position in the market. He notes that Standard Oil stock launched at 90 is now about 325, despite a heavy increase in capitalization, and that sugar certificates, which once "rattled" the decisions of the courts of this state and fear of receiverships for some of the company's most valuable refineries, fell nearly to 50. As for the rise in gas stocks, the writer describes it as "both unexpected and singular." Securities which an increase from 70 or less in 1887 to nearly 220 this year in the price of New York Consolidated Gas certainly justifies.

Curiously enough, so astute a writer as Marshall wholly fails to note the reasons for the remarkable prosperity of these corporations. In the cases of the first two he ascribes it wholly to the "superior talent with which their affairs have been conducted." Superior talent is perhaps an over-euphemistic phrase to apply to the methods of Mr. John D. Rockefeller and Mr. H. O. Havemeyer. In the case of a long series of legislative investigations and court proceedings the quality of superior unscrupulousness seems to have been pretty clearly established in their procedure. The skill with which legislatures and railway boards have been corrupted for the good of Standard Oil and the astuteness with which an ordinary common-sense United States senator has been stirred into amazing activity in behalf of sugar probably implies talent, but it suggests the exertion of less admirable mental qualities.—New York Journal.

Mr. J. H. Dazey, of Deshler, Ohio, appears to have a regular Coxey eye for business. He has forced himself to the front in the northwestern part of the state as a leader of the Populists, only to betray them. But the publication of the following document has melted away the last vestige of influence that Mr. Dazey ever possessed:

"Deshler, Ohio, August 31, 1897.

"I hereby agree to furnish my entire time and use my best efforts and influence for the Republican party during the coming campaign, either directly or indirectly, believing that I can control a large Populist vote for the Republican party, said party agreeing to pay all expenses, and to pay me as follows for my services: $200 about the 10th of September and $200 about the 25th of September, 1897. I further agree not to divulge any agreement which I may make.

J. H. DAZEY."

Why do some Republican papers get hundreds of dollars from Hanna's bar and others get none? If one paper gets a thousand, why should not every editor of a Republican paper have as much? Why this discrimination? The good book says: "The ox should not be muzzled while trampling out the grain."

HANNA'S RECORD.

A Sample of His Popularity With the Workingmen.

Mark Hanna, in his recent opinion at Burton, Ohio, where he helped open the Republican campaign, posed as the friend of labor, and claimed that the laboring men in his own section of the state appreciated the fact. Figures are said never to lie, and a study of the election statistics of Mark's own county, Cuyahoga, tells a different story. In 1895 the Republican majority in Cuyahoga county was 10,773. In 1896, when the Gold Democrats were voting for McKinley, and Hanna was spending money like water to carry Ohio for McKinley, and was making a special effort in Cuyahoga county, McKinley's majority in Cuyahoga was 5,873, barely one-half of what it had been a year before, and the heaviest Democratic gains were in the wards where the workingmen voted. This is a sample of Hanna's popularity with the workingmen in his own home. For the whole summer of 1896 the Brown Hoisting works, in which Hanna was largely interested, was under military guard as the result of labor troubles and a strike of the men for living wages. The coal strike of 1897 began in mines in which Hanna was a partner. For a friend of labor this is a good record. Actions speak much louder than words, and the workingmen of Ohio will prefer to judge Mark Hanna by what he has done in the past rather than by his honeyed words on the stump. "The leopard cannot change his spots," and Mark Hanna cannot make himself a friend of labor by empty campaign speeches. Ask the laboring men of Cleveland and they will tell you that Hanna has ever been their enemy. Conger says that Mark Hanna's nomination is an insult to the laboring men of Ohio, and he knows whereof he speaks.

NO MAN OWNS THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

The Gazette seems to be a little worried about whether the Record supports or opposes John R. McLean for United States senator. So far as we know Mr. McLean is not a candidate for United States senator or any other office, and we see no reason why we should support or oppose any man for office until we know that he is a candidate. Mr. McLean may be a candidate, and there are others in the Democratic party who may aspire to the office, but unlike the Republicans, who are fettered and bound to one candidate who controls and dictates the policy of the party for personal gain, the Democrats are tied to no one candidate for senator, and all will have an equal show when the proper time comes. The Record has no pretense at this time. We are fighting with our party to gain control of the state legislature, and when that is done there is time enough to consider the different candidates and choose from among them. There is plenty of good material in the Democratic party, however, from which to choose a United States senator, and we have no fear but what one can be found who will be far superior to Marcus A. Hanna, one who will represent the interests of the state and the people at large instead of the trusts and combines, be it John R. McLean or anyone else. The Republicans, however, have no voice in the matter. Marcus A. Hanna is the only candidate they dare support, as he owns them, body and soul, and it would be suicide for any other candidate to express any desire in the matter.—Putnam County Record.

ANOTHER TIP TO HANNA.

Marcus, you're a corker! Your Burton speech was great. Your colleague, Joseph Benson, should brook no rival as a statesman. You were eloquent; dramatic; Your diction pure and high. Except that you were somewhat Overlooked that letter "L."

Why don't you be more careful? Why go and drop your guard, When your adversary's ready To jab you good and hard? The cranky, crazy silverites Will jump on that bare speech And dance on it with glibulous glee And rebel yell and scream.

That act of Dick's was bad enough— I mean about those checks— When here you make a break yourself That's like to break us all. You must be a little more careful, All stations low and high. Opposed to overwork that Confounded pronoun I.

Those Burton lips would not be known— Your former folks are slow— But them darn literary chaps From off newspaper row. Why, Mark, they'll tear you all to shreds, I'm full of solid sense. For all I know they'll go for you About those blasted 'L's.

The fact's rays and mists, As I told you in my last, Are just dead as light as a snuff. And keep sabbin' 'bout the past. So we've got to win the farmers. Now please exercise some care. In your exhortation language And you'll land them in your snare.

Tell 'em 'bout your noble actions, Tell 'em how you won for Mac, How, but for the fund you gathered, G. O. P. had gone to wrack: Work upon their tender feelings, Say you 'heavily lost your life' From the overwork and worry Of the last election strife.

Keep 'em roasting! Colonel Conger, Talk lots about Klondike, Say prosperity's approach! On every road and pile; Keep harpin' on the price of wheat, Gettin'—look wile— But be careful as a serpent 'Bout those boomerangin' 'L's. JAY BEE.

"Hanna's paid agents are preparing to rape the ballot box in the most unexpected places. The attempt will be made wherever the people are the most honest and unsuspecting. Citizens, be on your guard."—Editorial Toledo Commercial Sept. 16.
